Terms and Conditions

Review draft — not approved for purchases or publication.

Effective date: {{APPROVED_EFFECTIVE_DATE}}
Version: {{APPROVED_TERMS_VERSION}}

1. Who we are

The People & Planet Thrive website, ppthrive.com, is operated by People and Planet Thrive Initiative Pvt. Ltd. ("PPTI", "we", "us" or "our"), a private limited company incorporated in Nepal on 12 November 2024.

Company registration: 355000/81/82, Office of the Company Registrar, Nepal.
PAN: 621243194.
Registered office: Budhanilkantha Municipality, Ward No. 11, Kathmandu, Nepal.
Customer-service email: {{PUBLIC_SUPPORT_EMAIL}}.
Customer-service telephone: {{PUBLIC_SUPPORT_PHONE}}.
E-commerce listing number: {{VERIFIED_ECOMMERCE_LISTING_NUMBER}}.

These Terms cover use of our website and purchases we make available through it, including applicable print publications, digital resources and learning activities. Research commissions, consultancy, publishing arrangements and other individually negotiated projects may also require a separate written agreement.

Product-specific conditions are explained before purchase. Nothing in these Terms or any related policy takes away rights that applicable law does not allow us to exclude.

2. Using the website and your account

Provide accurate information when creating an account, making an enquiry or placing an order. When acting for an organisation, you must have authority to act on its behalf. Purchases must be made by someone legally able to enter the relevant contract, or through an authorised parent, guardian or representative where required.

Keep your account credentials confidential and notify us about suspected unauthorised access. Do not use the website for fraud, unlawful copying, malicious interference, unauthorised access to other users' information or attempts to bypass payment and access controls.

You may browse public information without agreeing to purchase anything. Submitting a general enquiry does not, by itself, establish a paid service, research partnership or publishing arrangement.

3. Products, services and availability

Read the individual listing before ordering. It identifies the item or service, available format, included features, price and relevant delivery or access arrangements. Digital listings should identify material compatibility requirements and any access duration or usage restrictions.

Only items and services actually offered for order are available to purchase. A proposed programme, research description or publication announcement is not a promise of immediate availability. Any pre-order or expression-of-interest arrangement will be identified as such.

Where an identified error affects a proposed purchase, we will explain it and obtain your agreement to a correction or provide an appropriate cancellation/refund option. We will not silently increase an agreed order price.

4. Prices, currency and payment

Your checkout or agreed written quotation identifies the amount payable, transaction currency, applicable taxes and delivery or other charges before you confirm the purchase. A display conversion is not a change to the transaction currency. Where relevant, your own bank or payment provider may apply separately disclosed charges or conversion arrangements.

Use only payment methods displayed for your order. Availability may depend on the approved payment arrangements, product, location and currency. A method mentioned in promotional or development material is not necessarily available at checkout.

For bank transfers, follow the order instructions and include the payment reference. Payment remains awaiting confirmation until we verify receipt; sending a transfer screenshot alone does not establish cleared payment. Paid goods, downloads or services are released according to the confirmed payment and fulfilment arrangements for that order.

Use only payment credentials and accounts that you are authorised to use. Do not send passwords, one-time passcodes or complete payment-card details through contact forms or ordinary email.

5. Order information and confirmation

Review your order details and correct errors before submitting it. Our order communication will identify the ordered items, amount, currency and payment/fulfilment status. An awaiting-payment notice must not be treated as confirmation that payment succeeded.

We will provide the relevant order and payment records. If we cannot fulfil an accepted order, we will explain the problem and provide the remedy required by the contract and applicable law. We will not substitute a different product or programme without your agreement.

For a service agreed through a quotation, the written agreement specifies the scope, deliverables, fees, payment stages and acceptance arrangements.

6. Delivery of physical publications

Available destinations, delivery charges and dispatch/delivery arrangements are shown before purchase. We do not promise physical delivery to every country. Supply an address at which the order can be received and contact us promptly about a correction.

We will notify you of a material delivery problem and explain the available options. Estimated dates do not remove any binding delivery commitment or legal remedy. Where international delivery is offered, relevant import-charge responsibilities will be disclosed rather than assumed after purchase.

For missing, damaged or incorrect items, contact customer service with your order reference and a description. Relevant photographs may help us investigate but do not replace or restrict your legal rights.

7. E-books and other digital resources

Unless the individual resource states a different licence, a paid digital resource is supplied under a non-exclusive licence for your own use. Purchasing access does not transfer the author's or publisher's copyright. An institutional or multi-user licence must be expressly identified.

Do not redistribute, resell, upload or share paid files beyond the permission granted by the licence or applicable law. Resources carrying an open licence remain governed by that licence; these general Terms do not take away its permissions or lawful copyright exceptions.

The listing and order instructions specify the format, access method and any download or access limits. Contact us when a supplied file is missing, corrupt or materially incompatible with its description. Starting a download does not remove rights concerning defective, misdescribed or undelivered content.

Where a legally permitted immediate-supply arrangement affects a cancellation right, we will explain that arrangement and request any necessary separate consent and acknowledgement before supply. General acceptance of these Terms is not treated as that separate consent.

8. Cancellations, returns and refunds

Contact us promptly to request cancellation before dispatch or before a booked service starts. We will explain the options for the actual order. Any product-specific voluntary cancellation conditions will be disclosed before purchase and cannot override mandatory rights.

For eligible purchases governed by Nepal's Consumer Protection Act, statutory goods-return provisions include a seven-day period and a fifteen-day provision for goods whose seal remains unbroken, subject to the Act's conditions and exceptions. These provisions are not a blanket limitation on remedies for defective or misdescribed goods, nor an automatic rule for every digital product or service.

Where an item or service is not as described, is defective or is not supplied, we will provide the return, replacement, correction or refund remedy applicable to the circumstances and law. We do not operate a blanket "no refunds under any circumstances" rule.

We will not impose a deduction or fee that the law prohibits. Approved refunds will be returned through the original method where practicable, or through an agreed lawful alternative, within the applicable legal deadline. We will distinguish a refund actually initiated from an internal refund record and give relevant processing information.

Contact details for return requests are given in Section 16. Obtain the correct return destination before sending a physical item; the registered office is not automatically the returns warehouse. We will not use an administrative approval step to defeat a valid statutory return.

9. Training, events and other booked services

The relevant listing or written agreement specifies the audience, date and time zone, delivery mode, fee, included materials and cancellation or transfer conditions. Any assessment, attendance or certificate requirements must be stated for the specific programme.

A participation certificate is not a claim of a regulated qualification or third-party accreditation unless expressly supported and identified. We do not guarantee employment, admission, a professional licence or a particular personal result through participation.

If we cancel a paid programme, we will explain the refund entitlement and any optional alternative. A replacement date or credit will not be forced on you in place of a refund to which you are entitled. Substantial changes will be communicated with the options applicable to your booking.

10. Authors, contributors and project proposals

Sending a manuscript, article pitch or project idea allows us to assess the proposal; it does not guarantee publication, funding, acceptance, indexing, payment or a partnership.

You must have the rights and permissions needed to submit the material and must not include confidential information belonging to others without authority. We will not treat an enquiry or submission as a transfer of ownership or permission for public publication.

Any publication, copyright transfer, public-use licence, royalties, fees, commissioned work or other substantive arrangement must be set out in the relevant separate agreement. We may review a proposal internally and contact you about it for the purpose for which it was submitted.

11. Information and intellectual property

General research, editorial and educational material is provided for information and learning. It is not a substitute for individual medical, legal, financial, engineering or other regulated advice. This distinction does not reduce duties arising from a specific professional service we separately agree to provide.

Website text, design, publications and other material belong to their respective rights holders. You may use material as permitted by its stated licence, our written permission or applicable law. Do not remove attribution or represent another person's work as your own.

12. Privacy and communications

Our separate Privacy Policy explains the actual collection and use of personal information through the website and associated services. Read it alongside these Terms. Payment, delivery and other necessary service partners may have their own notices relevant to their role.

Customer-service and order messages are distinct from optional marketing. Accepting these Terms is not a blanket consent to marketing or to unrelated use of your personal information.

13. External services and links

The website may direct you to an external payment service or other third-party website. Read any terms relevant to using that service. An external link is not, by itself, our endorsement of everything on the destination website.

Use of a payment provider, distributor or courier does not remove our own responsibilities to you as the seller under the contract and applicable law.

14. Availability and protective action

Maintenance or technical faults may temporarily affect website access. Contact us when this prevents you from accessing a paid entitlement, so we can investigate and provide the appropriate assistance or remedy.

We may take proportionate protective action against suspected fraud, unlawful use or a material breach of these Terms. Where appropriate, we will explain the action and provide a contact route. Such action does not automatically cancel valid paid entitlements or statutory refund rights.

15. Responsibility and your rights

We remain responsible for our contractual and legal obligations. Nothing in these Terms excludes liability for fraud or any liability, remedy or consumer protection that applicable law does not allow us to exclude or limit.

An outcome-dependent research or learning activity is not a guarantee of a particular result. That does not excuse a failure to provide the agreed service with the standard required by law.

16. Customer support and complaints

Customer-service email: {{PUBLIC_SUPPORT_EMAIL}}.
Customer-service telephone: {{PUBLIC_SUPPORT_PHONE}}.
Responsible complaints person or unit: {{APPROVED_COMPLAINTS_PERSON_OR_UNIT}}.
Complaints email: {{PUBLIC_COMPLAINTS_EMAIL}}.
Complaints telephone: {{PUBLIC_COMPLAINTS_PHONE}}.
Complaints correspondence address: {{APPROVED_COMPLAINTS_ADDRESS}}.

Include your order reference where relevant, a description of the issue and the remedy you seek. Do not send passwords, one-time codes or unnecessary identity documents.

For complaints under Nepal's E-Commerce Act, we will register the complaint, immediately acknowledge receipt, investigate and provide a decision and written outcome or reasons within fifteen days of receipt. Our online complaints route is {{VERIFIED_COMPLAINTS_ROUTE}}.

Contacting us does not prevent you from seeking assistance from a competent consumer authority, court or other available dispute-resolution route.

17. Applicable law and changes

These Terms are governed by the laws of Nepal, without excluding any mandatory protection or jurisdiction right that applies to you as a consumer in another relevant country. We do not require you to give up a non-waivable right to complain or bring a claim.

We may update these Terms for future use or purchases. The effective date and version identify the published terms. Changes will not retrospectively remove rights attached to an existing order. Any material change to an existing agreement requires the notice or agreement required by law.

If a provision cannot lawfully be enforced, the remaining provisions continue to apply to the extent permitted by law.